124 U. S. L. LOSSES ARMENIANS CAPTURED BIG LINER SUNK

BIG LINER VICT OF U-BOAT

Owners of 19,443-Ton Minnetonka Hear of Her Loss in the Mediterranean

By International News Service.
 New York, April 11.—The Atlantic Transport Line offices announced today that they had heard that their 13,443-ton liner Minnetonka had been sunk, but were unable to confirm the report. The vessel has not touched an American port in some time, they said, being used in transport service between England and Italy. The sinking was reported in the Mediterranean.

It is understood here the liner has been in the British Hospital service. In the old days she was a New York to London freight and passenger boat, taking about ten days and making a very comfortable trip, popular for rest and recreation.

The Minnetonka, crowded her engines to 15-knot speed early in the war in a life and death race with a submarine, finally dropping the Hun safely behind.

The Minnetonka is a sister ship of the Minnehaha, sunk recently, and of the Minneka, which is still in service.

BASEBALL FUND HAS EVERYONE ROOTING

These are indeed days of sacrifice, and between wheelless days and meatless days and liberty loans the public is fast getting the habit of self-denial in the interest of the boys in khaki.

Here is one little sacrifice which can be made which will do the men in khaki at Camp Devens as much good as anything. Subordinate to the Boston American Camp Devens Baseball Fund.

BIG TOLL OF U. S. MEN WOUNDED

Sixty-nine Severe Cases in Night List; Larger Casualty Roll Yet to Be Published

By International News Service.
 Washington, April 11.—One of the largest lists of American overseas casualties reached the War Department today from General Pershing. Officials in charge refused to say how many names there were on it, simply characterizing it as "very large."

It was said, in the identification bureau, that telegraphic notifying relatives could be prepared and sent out, after which the list will be made public, possibly late this afternoon or this evening.

An overnight casualty list from General Pershing contained 124 names of these only one soldier was killed in action. Two died of wounds, five from accidents, and thirteen from disease.

GERMANS GAIN IN CHANNEL DRIVE

War news ranged far and wide today. Chief of several notable developments were:

1.—A new list of American casualties, containing 124 names, was issued at Washington. This was the "over night" list. Another one, described as "very large," is being prepared for publication after notifications to relatives.

2.—The Germans have taken Armenieres. Military experts at Washington say Germany is bent on hacking through to the Channel coast. A Hun plan to bombard the English coast is mentioned as a possibility. The new battlefield in France, from La Bassée canal up the Ypres-Comines canal, is one stretch of furious fighting. Paris reports heavy artillery fire along the French front. German raids were repulsed by the French.

3.—American troops have reached the British front (location not given). American troops northwest of Toul (French front) beat off a heavy German attack. It was the first real battle for our boys in that sector.

4.—The Atlantic transport liner Minnetonka, 13,443 tons, used in transport service between England and Italy, is reported sunk in the Mediterranean.

5.—The British have driven the Turks back one and one-half miles over a five-mile front north of Jerusalem.

Governor McCall Believes All Should Help Camp Devens Baseball Fund

By GOVERNOR SIMUEL W. MCCALL

I AM pleased to add my word of approval to those already spoken in favor of the proposal to have proper facilities at Camp Devens for the soldiers to witness baseball games. There is no more healthful sport than baseball and any movement that will allow a larger number of soldiers at Camp Devens to enjoy the game is worthy the support of everyone. We of this country have adopted baseball as the national game. Americans of all ages are baseball enthusiasts and hardly a city lot or a town plot is free from a baseball game during the season of the year when it can be played. The soldier in camp needs healthful and proper recreation and this is supplied in the best manner by a game of baseball. The erection of bleachers supplies not only encouragement to the players but also healthful enjoyment to those who witness the game, and I believe everyone in the Commonwealth should heartily respond to the movement that will properly furnish a baseball field and bleachers for the boys at Camp Devens.

FAIRBANKS' SEPARATION; WIFE COUGHT

New York, April 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks have separated. In the first public statement she has ever made, Mrs. Fairbanks acknowledged the separation and the popular screen star said "I regret to disagree—but that there would be no divorce, just a mutually accepted separation. Mrs. Fairbanks, who is at the Hotel Algonquin, advised that there has been so much gossip for the last eight months, I think the time has come to end it. It is the only thing I can do for either my boy or myself.

"My husband and I are the best of friends, but we have decided there will be no divorce. Just because we are such good friends there will, of course, be no divorce. There are no grounds for that. For the present I shall live with my son here in New York at the Algonquin.

"I am very much interested in the picture—the helping of families of soldiers left without their breadwinner for the duration of the war. In families where there are children especially I know I can be of service. I want to do that kind of work, and I cannot find an organization already started for this kind of service I mean to start one myself.

HER HUSBAND FIRST

"As far as my personal affairs are concerned, there is little I can say. For twelve years I have put my husband's happiness first. Now his happiness lies in paths of his own choosing—away from mine. There is only one thing, that I am sure, that it came to him, in his own way, while I and he went our separate ways. It was the best thing for all. He has always been the kindest and most considerate man in his home life. I can only wish happiness for him in the future.

"I cannot defend any woman with whom my husband's name has been linked. I will not malign her. She is associated with my husband in business. That, of course, is no concern of mine. I have made up my mind, for her, that I mean for the best. She is a very good woman, and I am sure she will be successful in her business. I am sure she will be successful in her business. I am sure she will be successful in her business.

SEVERE WIFE AT TRIAL

"Now I am through. For the sake of the boy and for my sake, I have come to realize that the only way to stop this gossip about the raising of the child, the Algonquin, and the coast is to plainly state that this child is the property of the father. I am sure the child is the property of the father. I am sure the child is the property of the father.

DIVORCES WIFE OF BILLY RAYMOND; CASE CLASS CHAMPIONS

New Decree for Wellesley Professor, With Custody of Children Yet to Be Settled

William Skirstrom, a professor at Wellesley College, was granted a divorce today from his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Buelow Skirstrom, a well-known culture teacher at New York on the ground of desertion by Judge Philip J. O'Connell in the Superior court at Dedham. The custody of the two children was left open.

A decree had been previously granted March 1, 1917, that the wife should leave the house and grounds, but when the case was taken to the higher court it was ordered to be held.

Skirstrom, testified that her husband compelled her to take up abode at Sebago Lake, Me., and took her himself to New York. She said she had no knowledge of his whereabouts. He denied having compelled his wife to take up abode at Sebago Lake, Me., and said he only suggested that she take the children to the country.

A legal battle for the custody of the children, and over the wife's expected to follow, as Judge O'Connell reached no decision as to which of the parents should have them.

THE NATION'S HOMES

Boston Freed From High Priced Roofings

Governor McCall recently signed a bill which relieves the Metropolitan residence district from the burden of high priced roofings and puts the best and most economical roofing within their reach—Asphalt Slate Shingles.

Rex Strip Shingles cost you less than any other roofing on the market—less when you buy them—less to put them on—less to maintain.

Rex Strip Shingles are guaranteed to give you to years' wear—they will easily last longer. They are so beautiful and give such all around satisfaction that they are used on the most expensive residences.

Rex Strip Shingles Are Approved by Fire Underwriters

We make 5 styles of Asphalt Slate Shingles, in two colors, dark red and green. Rex Strip Shingles and Rex Wide Space Shingles are also made in a beautiful mottled combination of red and green slate. These are natural slate colors and are therefore permanent.

Ask your dealer or ask us for prices, samples and literature. We have complete stocks in Boston for prompt delivery. A visit to our exhibit rooms will be interesting to you and will incur no obligation to buy.

AMERICA FULL OF SPIES LONG BEFORE WAR

By International News Service. Washington, April 11.—Germany recommended the United States with her secret agents long before the outbreak of the European war. Evidence to this effect was today laid before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee in a statement made by John F. Coar, a professor in the University of Alberta in Canada, and formerly an agent of the German Society of America.

No less than thirty-six secret agents were engaged in this work of propaganda, Coar declared in his statement. The work was directed from Germany by our Vice President. The principal agencies in the United States of the propaganda, Coar declared, were the Teutonic League, the German-American Alliance and the German Lutheran Church schools.

Washington, April 11.—The National Council of American Cotton Manufacturers has created a war production committee to co-operate with the War Industries Board for increased production and a possible stabilization of prices, should that need arise.

O'BRIEN BOMBED BY MEN OF OWN ARMY

Among the many thrilling things that Lieutenant "Pat" O'Brien, R. P. C., will describe at Tremont Temple, Saturday evening, is a vivid account of the bombing of Courtauld by allied airmen while he was a prisoner at that place.

"Most every night for the three weeks I was there," says the Yankee flyer, "our men came and dropped bombs on the town, and it was a strange feeling lying there in an old jail expecting every moment that one of your own comrades was going to send you to kingdom come. Of course our men did not know that prisoners were being held at Courtauld."

Lend Him A Hand

Your hand—my hand—

Every hand in the land stretched out to help him to VICTORY! That is the way that America is going to win this war. It is the only way she can win it.

We are fighting a united German people. Until every American is backing the boys in the trenches, until every hand in the land is stretched out to help, we cannot expect our army to defeat the German armies strengthened by the toil and sacrifice of the one hundred and fifty million people of Germany and her allies.

This is a war of national resources, and every one must add his share to America's fighting strength if we are to make our superior resources count. Every hand in the land must be stretched out to help our boys if we would send them over the top to early and certain VICTORY.

Invest in the Third Liberty Loan. Invest as much as you can spare. That is the way to lend a hand. That is the way to make a nation invincible for freedom and justice.

Every bond bought now is a direct fighting aid to this boy in the trenches in France.

Will the Legislature Pass Real "L" Control Bill?

Explanation of Why the Request for Signatures to the AMERICAN'S Petition Was Discontinued

From some persons who say that they signed the AMERICAN'S petition for public control of the Boston Elevated Railway we have received inquiries concerning the reason for discontinuance of the request for signatures. The $5,000 and more citizens of the Metropolitan District who over their signatures declared their belief in the public control bill which the Public Service Commission recommended to the Legislature are, of course, entitled to know the situation both as citizens and as parties whom we have invited to interest themselves in the situation.

Last week the AMERICAN editorially declared that the request for signatures had been abandoned because there was then a situation in which the AMERICAN was by no means certain that a real public control bill, such as the intelligent advocates of public control of the Boston Elevated Railway could approve, would result from the divergent views and interests which had revealed themselves.

The AMERICAN and, of course, the $5,000 odd citizens of Boston who have signed the petition for public control of the Elevated and the still greater number of citizens who have not signed it but who approve of it, want a real public control bill from which the public is sure to get the benefit of public control and not any special private interest either among the present stockholders of the Elevated or some future speculative group. This newspaper has never spent much time chasing myths and shadows. We are not impressed much by empty names—mere words in the title of a bill.

We would support most heartily a bill that was called a PRIVATE control bill that REALLY gave us public control just as we would oppose a bill which was passing under the title of a public control bill, but which really only imposed further burdens on the public without insuring the public of the benefits which may come from the burdens which it assumes.

Anybody who undertakes the management of the Boston Elevated Railway in its present unduly complicated and burdensome, and a considerable burden. It will take some time and much money to reorganize and rehabilitate that railway; and the benefits from this expenditure of money and reorganization and rehabilitation will not be instantaneous. It will be a harvest that must mature slowly. Therefore, it is of the greatest importance that we should have nothing in the law which, under the cover of public control, places the burden upon the public of financing and operating that road and then permits some special private interest to steal the road away, which, in other words compels the public to plow and to sow and yet does not insure to the public the right to reap the harvest. The AMERICAN does not propose that any scheme which will make the people of the Metropolitan District so that others may reap, shall be enacted into law without full warning of what is contemplated in the scheme.

Now, the danger point in a public control bill is in the manner in which public control may be continued or discontinued. It all depends upon what body shall decide whether public control shall continue or be discontinued.

If the public takes control of the Boston Elevated Railway and guarantees a reasonable dividend during the period of control and the stockholders of the Elevated profess to have no complaint and CAN have no complaint. If, therefore, at the end of any particular period the public finds the experiment unprofitable and turns the road back to private management, the stockholders will be no worse off than they are now and almost certainly will be far better off, because they will have had their dividends for the whole period of public control and they will receive back a road necessarily in better condition than it is now. But if, on the other hand, the public, by the expenditure of its money, the expenditure of its sympathy and confidence and co-operation and the intelligence and economy of its management, through its public trustees, builds up that now helpless railway, puts it back upon its feet, equips it with new cars, new rails, new stations, new everything that will make it a modern railway, capable of being run economically and profitably, what a crime it would be to permit the road to be turned over to some speculative private management.

A bill providing for public control and imposing upon the public the burden of rehabilitating that road which does not provide, also, that the public may retain control of the road so long as it desires that control, is a bill which is a real public control bill, which provides that the public control may be continued by an act of the Legislature does not give the public any assurance that the property which has built up and fattened may be retained, because under such a law any bold group of speculators by getting control of a majority of the Senate can prevent the public from continuing its control. Every intelligent man, woman and child in Massachusetts knows that any bold, well organized band of speculators never has found it difficult to control a Massachusetts Senate since the Civil War. If anybody should say that the times are changing and that it is becoming less and less possible for private financial interests to control our law-making bodies, it is a sufficient answer to that suggestion to call attention to the fact that after a great war there is always a period of wild speculation. There are so many great questions growing out of the war upon which public attention is focused that it is always easy for unscrupulous speculation to work its will.

What the public control bill must provide is either that the public control shall continue until the Legislature votes to discontinue it or until the legal voters of the cities and towns in which the tracks of the Elevated are located shall vote to continue or discontinue it. There is all the difference in the world between a law which provides that the public control shall continue until the Legislature votes to continue it and a law which provides that public control shall not cease unless the Legislature votes to discontinue it. By the first law any twenty-one members of the State Senate can prevent the continuation of public control. Under the second law those who want to deprive the public of the control of the road must not only get a majority of the Senate, but must also get a majority of the House and the approval of the Governor. The Senate has always been more loyal to the public interests than the House and our Governors have often stood watch over the public welfare in the rather frequent struggles with the private management of the Elevated, when both the Senate and the House had broken their faith. Consider the number of great reforms for the benefit of the mass of our citizens which Governor McCall has recommended and which the Senate has killed.

Under a referendum provision in the bill the people could continue or discontinue the experiment as they chose. Under the referendum not only the public but the taxpayer would vote and we should have a perfect reaction of all the public interests. In these democratic times, in the world and in Massachusetts, it is difficult to see how any one can oppose a referendum on so important and vital a question. But if not a referendum, then the burden must be upon those who would deprive the public of its control, so that the public may get the benefit of the protection of both the House and the Governor and may not be at the mercy of any twenty-one members of the Massachusetts Senate.

Tolerance a Virtue We All Need—Prig Is Narrow-Minded, Self-Conscious, Engrossed in His Own Mental or Spiritual Processes to the Exclusion of Others

By Elizabeth Jordan

Dear Miss Jordan:
At the breakfast table this morning my brother told me that his own was an "intolerant prig."

What did he mean? And if I am one, how can I get over it? WALTER.

I AM afraid, Walter, that your brother meant to be disagreeable. To call a person "an intolerant prig" is not to pay him a compliment, as you evidently suggest. But I like the spirit in which you take the charge. Most of all I like the way you express to get over being an intolerant prig, if you are one.

Let me add that I do not think you are. A prig is a narrow-minded, self-conscious person, engrossed in his own mental or spiritual processes. If he is also intolerant, it means that he is unwilling to allow others any variation from his individual standard, possibly biased.

Proof of Innocence

This is a sad condition to be in, Walter. But if you were really, as your brother suggests, you would not hesitate to try to get over it. You would be content with your situation, and convinced that those who do not share it with you, by that very fact proved themselves to be in the wrong.

In other words, you would be calling other persons "intolerant prigs," instead of upon suddenly settling about to discover if you yourself are one.

So much for the personal element in your question. Now, let me talk a bit about tolerance—use of the finest of human qualities, and by no means as universal as it is supposed to be.

The tolerant man is the unprejudiced man, the mentally balanced man, the understanding man. He knows that he himself is not the sole repository of human wisdom. He knows that wisdom will not die when he does. He knows that the opinions of his fellow-men may be, and often are, more valuable than his own. He knows that usually he can learn something from the humbleness of his associates.

Whether he can or not, whether others are right or wrong, he knows that they are entitled to their opinions and to the expression of them in words or actions, not from his own point of view, but from their. He is able to look at their problems from their standpoint. If they work out wrongly, he experiences an understanding pity.

In other words, Walter, the best type of tolerant man is the big-hearted, big-minded man whose tolerance springs from his knowledge of his fellow beings.

When John Bunyan saw the drunken clanging toward him he gazed on him more in pity than in disgust. Then he turned to the friend who was with him.

"There," said he, "but for the mercy of God, there goes John Bunyan!"

From the bighearted to the smaller one that each day brings is only a step. We are closely associated, perhaps, with someone whose qualities we despise—someone who maliciously gossips, someone who lies, someone who pretends to be our friend but who works against us in the dark.

Somer or later he will be recognized as the venomous thing he is. Sooner or later the mischief he is doing will be undone. Sooner or later the truth will come out. In the meantime we can only pity one so made that he must crawl in the dark, though he was meant to walk in the light like a man.

The ordinary give and take of opinion among the children.

Such a policy is not only unmodern but also extremely unwise. Free talk is the individual's safety valve. The child suppressed at home is apt to break out elsewhere. Nowhere is broad tolerance of every other person's viewpoint so seriously needed as in the family circle.

Yes, the message got through in time, sir. (The percentage is ninety-nine.) And no doubt that gallant bird, sir. Helped to save that part of the line.

Many of our brave lads, too, sir. Were rescued from dire distress. And they have a real good word, sir.

For the work of the C. P. S. Would it I could tell you all, sir. Of the brave deeds our lads have done.

But enemies are still in our midst, sir. So I'll wait till we've licked the Hun.

They have no cable or wires, sir. And the runners are out of mess. Aerial flying corps.

My social and family life brings hourly need for tolerance. We express an opinion. A sister disagrees, quickly and strongly. We are irritated. But why? Partly because of the force of her disagreement, but largely—one may as well admit it—because she ventures to disagree at all.

Free Talk's Value
Yet why should she not disagree? And what is there in us which makes us assume that she must be wrong?

Nor is the family intolerance confined to the young people. In thousands of American homes there are fathers and mothers who actually believe that fatherhood and motherhood carries infallibility with it. From morning until night these parents "lay down the law"—expressing their opinions as statements of fact and allowing no expression of difference of opinion among the children.

Such a policy is not only unmodern but also extremely unwise. Free talk is the individual's safety valve. The child suppressed at home is apt to break out elsewhere. Nowhere is broad tolerance of every other person's viewpoint so seriously needed as in the family circle.

My social and family life brings hourly need for tolerance. We express an opinion. A sister disagrees, quickly and strongly. We are irritated. But why? Partly because of the force of her disagreement, but largely—one may as well admit it—because she ventures to disagree at all.
